Intel showed off the PowerVR Rogue 8K for Android smartphones and tablets today at Computex, and LG posted its own. Both companies have completely different designs, but they both have the same in-house GPU cores that are powered by the Imagination Technologies IP6. ROG's design uses a custom chipset with the IGD PowerVR Rogue 8K GPU and X24, a 7nm GPU that will power the new S10 range of smartphones. As the name suggests, the design has no place for an HBM memory buffer. The RAM is integrated directly into the chip with much smaller memory spaces in the 82157476af
